New York Fashion Week with Janet Collection

The semi-annual New York Fashion Week, branded Mercedes-Benz FashionWeek, is held in February and September of each year in New York City. It is one of four major fashion weeks held around the world (along with those in Paris, London, and Milan).

For fashion editors, writers, stylists and retailers, New York Fashion Week is a chance to spot trends and themes for the upcoming season. But giving form to those looks is a small army of models, makeup artists, hairstylists and of course, the designers.

Here's a look back at what happened behind the scenes and on the runways of New York's Fashion Week.

JANET COLLECTION'S NEW APPROACHES TO BE NEAR YOU!!!

What is "Celebrity Marketing"?

Famous people have always made excellent salesmen. Presenting a familiar face is one of the fastest and easiest ways for companies to create brand associations in the minds of consumers. When a widely loved actor or a heroic sports figure endorses a product, that product gains immediate credibility.

Here is how it works.

Familiarity – The more familiar a celebrity is to the widest possible segment of the population, the more affective their ads will be. Relatively unknown celebrities are only used to market niche products and speak to very specific demographics.

Relevance – Marketers strive to create the greatest fit between a product and its celebrity endorser. The celebrity chosen must be seen in the eyes of the public as linked to the product they endorse. The greater the link, the more customers will trust the message being delivered.

Esteem – The more esteem that a celebrity endorser has, the more that esteem will transfer over to the product they are endorsing. Celebrity marketing is about associating a famous person's reputation with a product. The better their reputation, the better the product appears.

Differentiation – The advertising market is fierce and it can be difficult to differentiate similar products from each other. Advertisers are always trying to find a message or an image that makes their product seem unique when compared to competitors. Having an esoteric or unexpected celebrity spokesman can be a great way to stand out from the crowd.

SALLY LAPOINTE

"My work is always about evoking a certain emotion to the viewer, to create a feeling, a mood, to tell a story."
Born in Massachusetts, Sally LaPointe graduated from The Rhode Island School of design with a BFA in apparel design.

After graduation in 2006, she moved to New York city to start her line of women's ready-to-wear, which is now in its sixth season. Designs have been worn by celebrities such as Katy Perry, Carrie Underwood, Lady Gaga, Kim Kardashian, Julianne Hough, Brooklyn Decker, and Alessandra Ambrosio. Recently LaPointe was named one of Forbes 30 under 30 for 2012. The Sally Lapointe studios are located in New York city.

Falguni & Shane Peacock

Falguni and Shane Peacock have built a career in fashion by following their own set of rules. The secret of their success is the unique and unusual styling and attention to detail they give to each design to create "Luxury". "We enjoy the challenge and the small unexpected twists that flavour a garment that makes it unique. A dress must make, in an instant, a statement without the help of accessories."

The FSP brand carries the signature use of feathers, sequence and prints. Integral to the Peacock culture is the juxtaposition between contrasting elements: fragility and strength, tradition and modernity and fluidity and severity.

In a business climate that says "continue to do or die," the Peacock philosophy believes that "...Life is too short to blend in..." which they translate into each and every creation by mixing fantasy with reality.

FALGUNI & SHANE PEACOCK

"We love the idea of elegance and intricacy, whether it is in a scarf or an haute couture garment. Our sensibility, combined with a touch of high octane glamour and our devotion to rock and roll - the transition from chic to edgy, combined with a slightly wicked charm makes our clothes perfect for a rock and roll superstar."

With immediate goals to further expand Peacock products offerings and retail locations globally, the Peacock's long term strategy involves continuously growing their fashion empire into an international lifestyle brand, and establishing the company as a worldwide powerhouse of style.
